ABSTRACT

The approximately 1,250 books listed (with brief annotations) in this booklet vary greatly in difficulty and depth; they were read and selected by a committee of librarians who work with teenagers. Titles are listed according to 92 subjects under five general categories: here/now; mind's eye: the arts and fiction; science; action, adventure, and other things to do; and the global village. Indexes of subjects and titles are included. (JM)

The New York Public Library

BOOKS FOR THE TEEN AGE, 1977

This is a list of books, revised annually, on subjects of special interest and appeal to teenagers. Emphasis in selection of titles is on presentation which is clear, vivid, appealing, imaginative. All the books have been read and selected by the Committee on Books for Young Adults which is made up of librarians who work with teenagers in The New York Public Library. A large majority of the approximately 1250 titles have been chosen from adult publications. The juvenile titles listed have value for all ages. Out-of-print books are included only when they are still generally available in public libraries. Although most of the books listed are hard cover editions, many are available in paperback, and some are paperback only. New books, most of which have been published in 1976, are indicated by an asterisk().*

The books are constantly tested and tried with teenage readers in New York City. Since teenagers vary greatly in their interests, maturity, and reading ability, the books on this list vary greatly in difficulty and depth. They are not necessarily shelved in young people's collections because they do represent such a wide range from simple to complex, from light to profound.

They form a permanent exhibition in the Office of Young Adult Services, and at the Nathan Straus Young Adult Library, Donnell Library Center, 20 West 53rd Street. This library has a large collection of books, magazines, and audio cassettes, and an informal browsing section. Film programs, poetry workshops, craft demonstrations, and other activities of interest to teenagers are frequently scheduled at this center.

Every branch has many of the books on this list and other books of special interest to the teen age. They also have programs for teenagers from time to time. If you want advice about books and reading, if you want the schedules of programs in all branches, or if you would like to know how you can take part in the Library's radio program, Teen Age Book Talk, check with the Nathan Straus Young Adult Library, 790-6472, or with the Office of Young Adult Services, 790-6465.

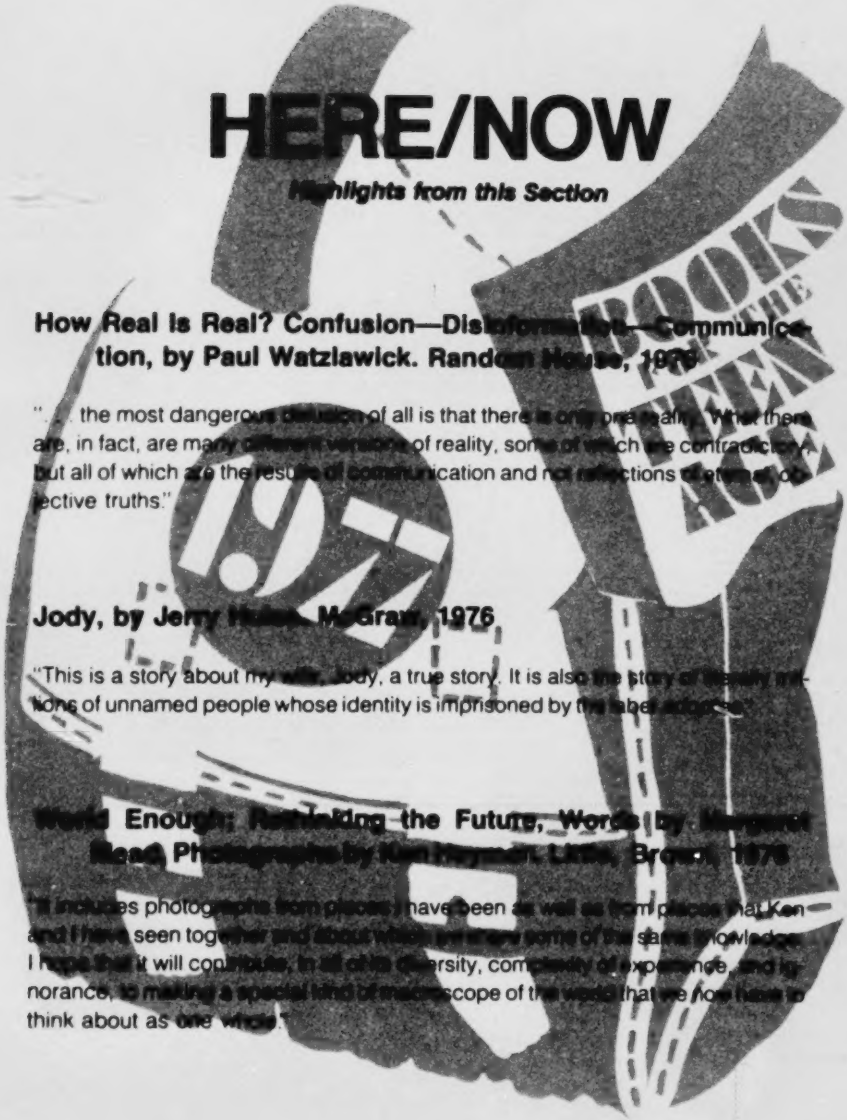
Highlights from this Section



How Real is Real? Confusion—Disinformation—Communication, by Paul Watzlawick. Random House, 1976

"... the most dangerous delusion of all is that there is only one reality. What there are, in fact, are many different versions of reality, some of which are contradictory, but all of which are the results of communication and not reflections of eternal objective truths."

Jody, by Jerry Hunter. McGraw, 1976

"This is a story about my wife, Jody, a true story. It is also the story of literally millions of unnamed people whose identity is imprisoned by the label addict."

World Enough: Rethinking the Future, Words by Margaret Mead, Photographs by Ken Heyman. Little, Brown, 1975

"It includes photographs from places I have been as well as from places that Ken and I have seen together and about which we've some of the same knowledge. I hope that it will contribute, in all of its diversity, complexity of experience, and ignorance, to making a special kind of macroscope of the world that we now have to think about as one whole."

MIND'S EYE: THE ARTS AND FICTION

Highlights from this Section

Alone Amid All This Noise; A Collection of Women's Poetry, selected by Ann Reit. Four Winds, 1976

"The poetry in this collection has all been written by women, and each poem, in some way, presents an aspect of the poet's image of herself. She sees herself variously as lover, mother, wife, daughter, and independent being; frightened, happy, vulnerable, strong. But all the poems, in one way or another, are about the poet as a woman."

Ordinary People, by Judith Guest. Viking, 1976

"This house. Too big for three people. Straining, he can barely hear the early-morning sounds of his father and mother organizing things . . . It doesn't matter. He doesn't need to hear, and they would certainly not be talking about anything important. They would not be talking, for instance, about him . . . They do not discuss a problem in the presence of the problem. There is just Phase Two. Recovery. A moving forward."

Violins & Shovels; The WPA Arts Projects, by Milton Meltzer. Delacorte, 1976

"The WPA broke the vacuum in which American artists had worked, discovering immense audiences only dreamed of before. The arts, for the first time, entered the life of the community."

Highlights from this Section

Adventures of a Mathematician, by S. M. Ulam. Scribner, 1976

"I began as a pure mathematician. In Los Alamos I met physicists and other 'natural' scientists, and consorted mainly, if not exclusively, with theoreticians. It is still an unending source of surprise for me to see how a few scribbles on a blackboard or on a sheet of paper could change the course of human affairs."

A House in Space, by Henry S. F. Cooper, Jr. Holt, 1976

"The astronauts sometimes called it 'the cluster,' and sometimes 'the can' and both terms were correct, for Skylab was a cluster of cans. By far the biggest can, called the workshop, was a converted Saturn rocket booster of the sort that used to power Apollo astronauts out of earth orbit toward the moon."

Microbe Power; Tomorrow's Revolution, by Brian J. Ford. Stein and Day, 1976

"The number of microbes that cause disease is a minute proportion of the species that exist. Many of them confer health on higher organisms, and if we were more aware of the good side of the microbial universe we would discover endless examples of the way microbes help mankind, and many new means of harnessing their vast energies."

ACTION, ADVENTURE, AND OTHER THINGS TO DO

Highlights from this Section

Flying Know-How, by Robert N. Buck. Delacorte, 1975

"Appearance doesn't make the pilot. It's what's in his head that does: what he knows and how he uses it. So we're going to explore what's in that head, what should be in it, how he thinks and acts, and the many, many tricks of the trade he's picked up through the years."

Life On The Run, by Bill Bradley. Quadrangle, 1976

"As I heard the swish and felt my body loosen into familiar movements—the jumper, the hook, the reverse pivot—I could hear the crowd though I was alone on the floor. A feeling came over me that stirred something deep inside. . . . I knew that never to play again, never to play against the best, the pros, would be to deny an aspect of my personality perhaps more fundamental than any other. . . . Three weeks later I signed a contract with the New York Knicks."

The Rage To Survive, by Jacques Vignes. Morrow, 1976

"And now, hanging onto Njord's hull, catching their breath, they waited while the devastating nightmare cataract sluiced off, leaving them exhausted, haggard, close to disbelief. What had happened? The wave, yes, that enormous wave. But did Njord actually disappear for a few moments? No matter. . . . Only one thing counted: getting back on board. Would they have the strength?"

THE GLOBAL VILLAGE

Highlights from this Section

The Soviet Union Today, by John Dornberg. Dial Press, 1976

"The USSR is, first of all, not the ogre of international relations it was made out to be during the Cold War. On the other hand, it is not the shining example for the rest of the world its admirers and sympathizers claim it to be. It is a rather grim place. But it is a real country with real people who have real problems, some of which communism is solving."

Uptown, Downtown: A Trip Through Time on New York's Subways, by Stan Fischler. Hawthorn, 1976

"In general, a good subway or elevated trip must include at least some of the following ingredients: a speedy run, interesting scenery, rhythmical track music, and something to see and do at the end of the line. For example, any one of the six lines (B, D, F, M, N, QB) converging on Stillwell Avenue–Coney Island gets points because both the original Nathan's Famous and the Aquarium are only blocks away."

Women of the Shadows, by Ann Cornelisen. Little, Brown, 1976

"Peppina, Ninetta, Teresa and Maria all exist. They have names and faces and families. They do what they must; they struggle today, as in the past. Pinuccia and Cettina exist too and have names, faces and families. They are younger. Their lives are less set; they still have their way to find . . . The photographs were taken in Southern Italy."
